Hi Paul:) Once you've added the data labels via 'add data labels', you can click on each label individually and modify the labels to be whatever you like.. • Click the Charts button on the toolbar • Select the first type of chart, called a column chart.. Edit the data in the Chart in Microsoft Word window to build the graph Unlike creating a chart in Excel, Word starts out with a ready-made sample chart, so edit the existing series labels, categories and values in the spreadsheet to turn the sample chart into your own.. I know that it should be possible because Keynote does it automatically, however keynote still doesn't allow error bars so I'm forced to use MS Office to generate my charts.. There are several kinds of charts, such as bar graphs, line graphs, and pie charts. cea114251b
